Specifically, the information contained in the State Police's file will allow the defendants to determine what information was disclosed to the prosecution, the State Police, and defense counsel for Kenneth Waters by the defendant police officer, thus providing the defendant police officers with a defense to the plaintiff's Complaint. Such information will also provide an opportunity to assess whether the Commonwealth and/or its agents and officers should be joined as third party defendants. Further, the information requested is not available from any other source and not privileged. Accordingly, the Court should grant the Plaintiff's Motion to Compel and allow access to the file as requested by the parties.
